This is the last chapter of the book, and it turns the subject on you. Everything up to now has taught you to handle a situation; this chapter asks what you make of the country you are handling it in. The title is its own answer — a bit hard, but good fun.

The two grammar points are the two halves of that answer. -지요? checks something you already believe (약국은 밤에 문을 닫지요?), and -는데 sets two facts against each other (조금 힘든데 재미있어요). Between them you can compare Korea with home and say how you find it.

도입

Warm-up

이 사람들은 한국에서 어떻게 지내고 있어요?

How are these people getting on in Korea?

여러분은 한국 생활이 어때요?

How is life in Korea for you?

Three scenes of settling in. A group walking a hanok lane, two of them showing the others around. Three women at a library table with books and a laptop between them. And a family at home on the sofa, parents and a child with the family photograph on the wall behind them. Sightseeing, studying, and simply being at home.

지내다 is to get on, to spend time, to be doing — it is how Korean asks after someone's life rather than their day. 잘 지냈어요? is "how have you been?", and 잘 지내요 is the answer. It is warmer than 어떻게 살아요? and much commoner.

고 있다 in 지내고 있어요 is the progressive, an action in progress. You will study it properly later; for now note that 지내요 and 지내고 있어요 both work here, with the second stressing that it is going on right now.

여러분은 한국 생활에 대해서 무엇을 알아요?

What do you know about life in Korea?

교통 — getting around

대중교통 수단을 이용하기 편하다

public transport is easy to use

택시 잡기가 쉽다

taxis are easy to catch

교통 카드를 이용하다

to use a transport card

고등학교 — school

2월에 졸업하다

to graduate in February

3월에 입학하다

to start school in March

여름과 겨울에 방학이 있다

there are summer and winter holidays

병원 — at the doctor's

외국인 등록증이 필요하다

you need your alien registration card

건강 보험이 되다

health insurance covers it

12시부터 1시까지 점심시간이다

lunch break is from twelve to one

The Korean school year begins in March and ends in February, so the graduating class leaves in the depths of winter and the new one arrives with the blossom. If your own country runs September to June, this is one of the first things that will feel genuinely rearranged.

외국인 등록증, the alien registration card, is the document that makes everything else possible — a bank account, a phone contract, health insurance, a hospital visit. Carry it. 등록증 is the same 증 you met on identity cards last chapter.

건강 보험이 되다 means the national health insurance applies, so you pay only a fraction of the bill. 되다 here is "it works, it applies" rather than "to become" — the same use as in 배달이 되다, delivery is available, on the next page.

점심시간 at a clinic is not a formality. Many smaller surgeries genuinely lock the door from twelve to one, and turning up at half past twelve means waiting. Check the hours before you go, especially at 내과 and 치과.

교통 카드 is the rechargeable transport card — T-money and Cashbee are the usual names. It works on buses, the subway, most taxis and in convenience stores, and it makes transfers between bus and subway free or nearly so, which a single-journey ticket does not.

여러분이 한국 생활에 대해 아는 것을 이야기해 보세요.

Talk about what you know about life in Korea.

한국 사람

Korean people

한국어

한국의 의식주

Korean food, clothing and housing

의식주 is a single word covering the three necessities — 의 clothing, 식 food, 주 housing. Korean compresses the whole of material life into three syllables, and the word turns up constantly in writing about culture and about the cost of living.

동형-지요?

Verb/adjective + -지요?

이미 알고 있는 것을 다시 확인할 때 사용해요.

Used to double-check something you already know.

가 라민 씨, 오늘 날씨가 많이 덥지요?
Ramin, it's really hot today, isn't it?

나 네, 정말 더워요.
Yes, it really is.

예문 — examples

가 우리 토요일에 만나지요?
We're meeting on Saturday, aren't we?

나 네, 맞아요.
Yes, that's right.

가 단풍이 아름답지요?
The autumn leaves are beautiful, aren't they?

나 네, 정말 아름답네요.
Yes, they really are.

-지요?

먹다 → 먹지요?
to eat → you eat, don't you?

좋다 → 좋지요?
to be good → it's good, isn't it?

가다 → 가지요?
to go → you're going, aren't you?

예쁘다 → 예쁘지요?
to be pretty → it's pretty, isn't it?

Tip

명이지요?

회사원 → 회사원이지요? · 학교 → 학교지요?

-지요? is not a real question. You already believe the answer and you are inviting the other person to agree. That is why every reply on this page is 네, 맞아요 or 네, 정말 아름답네요 — agreement, not information. Ask 더워요? and you genuinely want to know; ask 덥지요? and you are saying "it's hot, right?"

In speech -지요? almost always contracts to -죠?. 덥죠?, 맞죠?, 가죠? — that is what you will actually hear, and using it will make you sound markedly more natural. Write 지요, say 죠.

It attaches straight to the stem with no 으 inserted, exactly like last chapter's -지 마세요: 먹지요?, not 먹으지요?. The two belong to the same 지 family, and neither ever needs the extra vowel.

For nouns, use 이지요? after a consonant and 지요? after a vowel — 회사원이지요?, 학교지요?. That is the same 이다 splitting the same way it did for -네요 in chapter 15.

1 후엔이 병원에 전화했어요. 무엇을 확인해요? 이야기해 보세요.

1 Huyen has phoned a hospital. What is she checking? Talk about it.

보기 대한병원이다 → 여보세요, 거기 대한병원이지요? / 네, 맞습니다.

Model: it's Daehan Hospital → Hello, that's Daehan Hospital, isn't it? / Yes, that's right.

1) 예약을 받다

to take appointments

2) 건강 보험이 되다

health insurance is accepted

3) 6시까지 진료하다

to see patients until six

This is the most immediately useful exercise in the chapter. Phoning ahead to confirm the name, the opening hours and whether your insurance applies is exactly what -지요? is for, and 여보세요, 거기 ○○이지요? is the opening line of every such call.

2 여러분도 친구에 대해 아는 것을 확인해 보세요.

2 Check something you know about a classmate.

가 아나이스 씨는 대학원에 다니지요?
Anaïs, you go to graduate school, don't you?

나 네, 대학원에 다녀요.
Yes, I'm at graduate school.

다니다 is to attend somewhere regularly — a school, a company, a gym. 학교에 다녀요 means you are a student there, not that you are walking to it today. It is the verb for belonging to an institution over time.

어휘와 문법 2

Vocabulary & grammar 2

동네에 뭐가 있어요? 그곳은 어떤 특징이 있어요?

What is in the neighbourhood? What is each place like?

동네 — around the neighbourhood

24시간 배달이 되다

24-hour delivery is available

4시까지 문을 열다

open until four

쓰레기봉투를 팔다

to sell rubbish bags

자전거 도로 cycle lane

약을 팔다

to sell medicine

버스 전용 차로

bus lane

주말에 문을 닫다

closed at weekends

팔빙수를 팔다

to sell patbingsu

쓰레기봉투 is the detail that catches every new resident out. Household rubbish must go in your district's own official bag, bought at the local shop, and using any other bag means it will not be collected. The bag is the fee — that is how the disposal charge is levied.

문을 열다 and 문을 닫다 are literally to open and close the door, but they mean to be open and to be closed for business. 은행은 4시까지 문을 열어요 means the bank is open until four, not that someone opens a door at four.

버스 전용 차로 is the bus-only lane, marked in blue down the middle of major roads, and it is why a bus can be faster than a taxi at rush hour. 전용 means exclusive-use, and it turns up everywhere: 전용 주차장, 여성 전용.

팔빙수 is shaved ice with sweet red beans, the summer dessert. 팔 is the red bean and 빙수 the shaved ice. You will see it advertised outside cafés from June, often in versions with fruit or cheesecake piled on top.

여러분의 동네에 뭐가 있어요? 그곳은 어떤 특징이 있어요? 이야기해 보세요.

What is in your neighbourhood, and what is each place like? Talk about it.

우리 동네 은행은 주말에 문을 열어요.

The bank in my neighbourhood is open at weekends.

특징 means a distinguishing feature, what is notable or particular about something. Asking 어떤 특징이 있어요? is asking what makes a place worth mentioning — its hours, its stock, the thing it does that others do not.

동형-는데(대조)

Verb/adjective + -는데 (contrast)

앞의 내용과 다른 사실, 행동을 연결해서 말할 때 사용해요.

Used to link a fact or action that differs from what was said before.

가 안젤라 씨는 한국 생활이 어때요?
Angela, how is life in Korea?

나 조금 힘든데 재미있어요.
It's a bit hard, but it's good fun.

예문 — examples

가 요즘 날씨가 쌀쌀하지요?
It's been chilly lately, hasn't it?

나 네, 낮에는 더운데 아침저녁에는 쌀쌀해요.
Yes — it's hot in the daytime, but chilly morning and evening.

밤 12시에 지하철은 다니는데 버스는 안 다녀요.

At midnight the subway is still running, but the buses aren't.

-는데 · -은데 · -ㄴ데

-는데 · 먹다 → 먹는데

action verbs take -는데, whatever the stem

★ 살다 → 사는데

to live → 사는데, the ㄹ drops

좋다 → 좋은데

to be good → 좋은데

★ 멀다 → 먼데

to be far → 먼데, the ㄹ drops

가다 → 가는데 to go → 가는데

-은데 · 작다 → 작은데

descriptive verbs after a consonant take -은데

-ㄴ데 · 크다 → 큰데

descriptive verbs after a vowel take -ㄴ데

Tip

명인데

학생 → 학생인데 · 이집트 → 이집트인데

The chapter title is this grammar point in action: 한국 생활은 조금 힘든데 재미있어요. 힘들다 is a descriptive verb with a ㄹ stem, so the ㄹ drops and it becomes 힘든데 — hard, and yet. Both halves are true at once, which is the whole point of the ending.

The two starred verbs are the ㄹ rule again, and this is now the fourth chapter in a row where it matters: 살다 → 사는데, 멀다 → 먼데. Before ㄴ the stem-final ㄹ simply drops, exactly as in 사네요, 사는 것 and 마세요. If you have been watching for it, it will not surprise you here.

Which of the three endings you use depends on the kind of verb, not just on the final letter. Action verbs take -는데 whatever they end in. Descriptive verbs take -은데 after a consonant and -ㄴ데 after a vowel — the same split as -은/-ㄴ elsewhere. 있다 and 없다 behave like action verbs: 있는데, 없는데.

Do not confuse this -는데 with the -는 것 of chapter 16. There, 는 built a noun; here it builds a connective linking two clauses. Same syllable, entirely different job, and the giveaway is what follows: 것 makes a thing, 데 makes a contrast.

-는데 does more than contrast, though contrast is what the book labels it here. It also sets up background before a request or a comment, which is why Korean speakers use it constantly. For now, use it for the "but" sense and you will be right.

1 한국과 여러분의 고향은 뭐가 달라요?

1 What is different between Korea and your home country?

보기 한국에 산이 많다 · 고향에 산이 적다 → 한국에는 산이 많은데 제 고향에는 산이 적어요.

Model: Korea has many mountains · home has few → Korea has a lot of mountains, but my home country has few.

1) 한국은 눈이 오다 · 고향은 눈이 안 오다

Korea gets snow · home doesn't

2) 한국은 24시간 배달이 되다 · 고향은 24시간 배달이 안 되다

Korea has 24-hour delivery · home doesn't

3) 한국에 버스 전용 차로가 있다 · 고향에 버스 전용 차로가 없다

Korea has bus lanes · home doesn't

Notice that the model puts 는 on both halves — 한국에는 ... 제 고향에는. That is the topic marker doing contrastive work, marking the two things being set against each other. 는 has done this since chapter 2; here you can see why it matters.

2 한국과 여러분 고향은 뭐가 달라요? 이야기해 보세요.

2 What is different between Korea and your home country? Talk about it.

말하기와 듣기

Speaking & listening

1 잠시드 씨와 라흐만 씨가 집에서 전화해요. 다음과 같이 이야기해 보세요.

1 Jamshid and Rahman are on the phone at home. Practise the conversation below.

잠시드 여보세요? 라흐만 씨, 약국은 밤에 문을 닫지요?
Hello? Rahman — the pharmacy closes at night, doesn't it?

라흐만 네. 그런데 왜요?
It does. Why, what's up?

잠시드 배가 아파서요.
My stomach hurts.

라흐만 그럼 편의점에 가세요. 약국은 밤에 문을 닫는데 편의점은 안 닫아요.
Then go to a convenience store. The pharmacy closes at night, but the convenience store doesn't.

잠시드 그렇군요. 정말 고마워요.
Ah, I see. Thanks very much.

이렇게 바꿔서 연습해 보세요 — practise with these substitutions

1) 약국은 밤에 문을 닫다 | 배가 아프다 | 편의점은 안 닫다

pharmacy closes at night | stomach hurts | convenience store doesn't close

2) 우체국은 일요일에 쉬다 | 택배를 보내고 싶다 | 편의점은 안 쉬다

post office is shut on Sunday | want to send a parcel | convenience store isn't 배가 아파서요 is the -어서 of chapter 16 used to end a sentence rather than continue it. Adding 요 to the reason clause and stopping there answers "why?" without repeating the whole thing. It is extremely common and worth copying exactly.

그렇군요 is the sound of something clicking into place — "ah, I see, I didn't know that". It is one of the most useful things you can say while learning, because it acknowledges new information gracefully. The plain form is 그렇구나.

The practical content is real: Korean convenience stores are licensed to sell a small range of basic medicines — painkillers, digestive remedies, cold preparations — precisely so that something is available when the pharmacy has shut. That is what makes Rahman's advice useful rather than merely polite.

택배 is a courier parcel service, and it is woven into daily life here in a way it is not everywhere: next-day delivery is standard, and you can send as well as receive from a convenience store. 택배를 보내다 to send one, 택배가 오다 for one to arrive.

2 여러분도 한국 생활에 대해 알고 싶은 것을 친구에게 물어보세요.

2 Ask a classmate about something you would like to know about life in Korea.

듣기 — 후엔 씨와 민수 씨가 이야기해요. 잘 듣고 답해 보세요.

1) 마트는 언제 쉬어요? 모두 고르세요.

1) When is the supermarket closed? Choose all that apply.

① 첫째 주 일요일
the first Sunday

② 둘째 주 일요일
the second Sunday

③ 셋째 주 일요일
the third Sunday

④ 넷째 주 일요일

the fourth Sunday

2) 후엔 씨는 오늘 어디에서 물건을 살 거예요?

2) Where is Huyen going to do her shopping today?

The question is real Korean law, not an invention. Large supermarkets are required to close two Sundays a month — usually the second and fourth — to protect traditional markets and small shops. The dates are posted at the entrance, and forgetting them is a standing local joke.

첫째, 둘째, 셋째, 넷째 are the ordinals for first, second, third, fourth. They are built on the native numbers 하나, 둘, 셋, 넷 and are used for ranking and for weeks of the month, quite separately from the 일, 이, 삼 you use for dates.

읽기와 쓰기

Reading & writing

1 다음 글을 읽고 질문에 답해 보세요.

1 Read the passage and answer the questions.

안녕하세요. 제 이름은 고천입니다. 저는 한국 사람과 결혼해서 한국에 왔습니다.

Hello. My name is Gochen. I married a Korean and came to Korea.

저는 남편과 한국어로 말합니다. 그래서 한국어 말하기는 쉬운데 쓰기는 어렵습니다.

My husband and I speak Korean together, so speaking is easy for me, but writing is hard.

저는 평일에는 아이들에게 중국어를 가르칩니다.

On weekdays I teach Chinese to children.

그리고 주말에는 한국어도 공부하고 한국 요리도 배웁니다.

And at weekends I study Korean and learn Korean cooking as well.

아직 한국 생활에 익숙하지 않아서 힘듭니다. 하지만 즐겁습니다.

I'm not used to life in Korea yet, so it's hard. But I'm enjoying it.

여러분은 한국 생활이 어떻습니까?

How is life in Korea for you?

Gochen's situation is the situation of a great many people in a KIIP classroom: she came through marriage, she already speaks the language at home, and the gap between her speaking and her writing is exactly why she is in the class. The passage is written to be recognised.

결혼해서 한국에 왔습니다 uses the -어서 of chapter 16 for sequence rather than cause — married, and then came. 결혼하다 takes 와/과 for the person: 한국 사람과 결혼했어요. Never 한국 사람을 결혼했어요.

한국어 말하기는 쉬운데 쓰기는 어렵습니다 is the chapter's grammar in the passage's own voice, and note the two 는 again marking the contrast. -기 turns a verb into a noun here — 말하기 speaking, 쓰기 writing — which is the naming convention this whole book uses for its four skills.

익숙하다 is to be used to something, to be familiar with it, and it takes 에: 한국 생활에 익숙하다. The negative 익숙하지 않다 is what you will need for a while yet, and 익숙해지다 is what you are aiming at — to become used to it.

1) 고천 씨의 남편은 어느 나라 사람입니까?

1) What nationality is Gochen's husband?

→ 한국 사람입니다.

→ He's Korean.

2) 고천 씨는 요즘 무엇을 안 합니까?

2) What does Gochen not do these days?

① 중국어를 가르칩니다.

She teaches Chinese

③ 한국어를 공부합니다.

She studies Korean

② 한국 요리를 배웁니다.

She learns Korean cooking

④ 한국 회사에 다닙니다.

She works at a Korean company — ○, this is the answer

Three of the four options appear in the passage almost word for word, and the fourth does not appear at all.

That is how this question type works: you are not looking for something contradicted, you are looking for the one thing never mentioned.

3) 맞으면 ○, 틀리면 X 하세요.

3) Mark ○ if true, X if false.

① 고천 씨는 한국어 쓰기가 쉽습니다.

Writing Korean is easy for Gochen — , she says writing is hard ② 고천 씨는 한국 생활에 익숙합니다.

Gochen is used to life in Korea — , she says she is not yet

Both statements are false, and both are false because the passage says the opposite in a subordinate clause — 쓰기는 어렵습니다 and 익숙하지 않아서. When a reading question feels too easy, check whether the negative is hiding inside a longer sentence.

2 여러분의 한국 생활은 어때요? 한국 생활에 대해 써 보세요.

2 How is your life in Korea? Write about it.

Use Gochen's paragraph as the frame: who you are and how you came, what is easy and what is hard, what you do on weekdays and at weekends, and how you feel about it overall. The one sentence to borrow outright is the shape of the last two — 힘들니다. 하지만 즐겁습니다.

단어장 — vocabulary

결혼하다 to marry

평일

weekday

중국어

Chinese (language)

익숙하다

to be used to, to be familiar with 평일 is a weekday as opposed to 주말, the weekend, and it is the word on every price list where the weekend costs more. The related 휴일 is a day off and 공휴일 a public holiday.

문화와 정보 — 한국어 줄임말

Culture & information — Korean abbreviations

"아주머니, 여기 물냉 하나, 비냉 하나 주세요!" 여러분은 식당에서 이런 말을 들었습니까?

"Excuse me — one mulnaeng and one binaeng, please!" Have you heard something like this in a restaurant?

'물냉'은 '물냉면', '비냉'은 '비빔냉면'을 의미합니다.

물냉 means 물냉면, cold noodle soup, and 비냉 means 비빔냉면, cold noodles mixed with sauce.

한국 사람들은 어떤 단어를 짧게 말합니다.

Koreans shorten certain words.

'뚝불'은 '뚝배기 불고기', '치맥'은 '치킨과 맥주'를 의미합니다.

뚝불 means 뚝배기 불고기, bulgogi served in an earthenware pot, and 치맥 means chicken and beer.

음식 이름만이 아니라 다른 단어도 짧게 말합니다.

It is not only food names that get shortened.

'아르바이트'는 '알바', '셀프 카메라'는 '셀카'입니다.

아르바이트 becomes 알바, and 셀프 카메라 becomes 셀카.

줄임말은 짧고 간편해서 좋는데 가끔 의미를 몰라서 불편하기도 합니다.

Abbreviations are short and convenient, which is good, but sometimes you don't know what they mean, and that is inconvenient.

A misprint worth knowing about, because it teaches the wrong rule if you copy it: the book prints '뚝불'은, but 뚝불 ends in the consonant ㄹ, so the particle should be 은 — '뚝불'은, exactly as '치맥'은 is written in the same sentence. The Korean here is reproduced as printed; the correct form is 뚝불은.

Notice that the final sentence of the passage is this chapter's grammar: 짧고 간편해서 좋는데 ... 불편하기도 합니다. Good, and yet inconvenient — 좋는데 is a descriptive verb after a consonant, so it takes -은데. The book has closed the chapter by using its own grammar to weigh something up.

치맥 is more than a word. Fried chicken with beer is a genuine institution — delivered to your door, eaten in parks by the river in summer, and the standard thing to propose when someone says 오늘 뭐 할까요? The abbreviation exists because the pairing is that fixed.

알바 is the short form of 아르바이트, the German Arbeit that reached Korean through Japanese and came to mean part-time work specifically. You met the long form back in chapter 9; this is the form people actually say, along with 알바생 for the person doing it.

The abbreviations follow a pattern once you see it: take the first syllable of each part. 물냉면 → 물냉, 치킨 + 맥주 → 치맥, 셀프 카메라 → 셀카, 아메리카노 → 아아 for an iced one. Knowing the rule will not let you invent new ones safely, but it will help you decode what you hear.

질문 — questions

1) '물냉', '비냉'은 무엇을 의미해요?

What do 물냉 and 비냉 mean? → 물냉면과 비빔냉면을 의미해요

2) 줄임말은 왜 불편해요?

Why are abbreviations inconvenient? → 가끔 의미를 몰라서 불편해요

3) 여러분이 알고 있는 줄임말에는 어떤 것이 있어요?

Which abbreviations do you already know?

아주머니 is how you address a middle-aged woman you do not know, and it is the normal way to call a server in an ordinary restaurant. 사장님 is commoner now and safer if you are unsure; 저기요 works everywhere and offends nobody.

줄임말 in the wild — a text message

- 가 오늘 저녁 같이 먹자. 시간 있어?
Let's have dinner together tonight. Have you got time?
- 나 아니, 나 알바하러 가.
No — I'm off to my part-time job.

This exchange is in 반말, the plain style friends use with each other: 먹자 rather than 먹읍시다, 있어? rather than 있어요?, and no 요 anywhere. You are not asked to produce it yet, but this is what your phone will actually look like. Note 알바하러 — the abbreviation from the previous page, with the -으러 of chapter 13.

발음 1 — 다음을 듣고 따라 읽으세요.

아름답지요 [아름답찌요]

a-reum-dap-jji-yo

좋지요 [조치요]

jo-chi-yo

닫는데 [단는데]

dan-neun-de

Three different rules in three words. In 아름답지요 the ㅁ tenses the following ㅈ to [ㅈㅍ] — a stop makes the next consonant tense. In 좋지요 the ㅎ merges with the ㅈ to give an aspirated [ㅈʰ], which is why it comes out 조치요 with the ㅎ gone. And 닫는데 is the nasalisation you have met twice already: ㄷ before ㄴ becomes ㄴ.

The 좋지요 → [조치요] rule is worth generalising, because ㅎ does this with every following stop: 좋다 [조타], 좋고 [조코], 많지 [만치]. The ㅎ never survives; it turns the next consonant into its aspirated partner.

발음 2 — 다음을 듣고 연습해 보세요.

- 가 단풍이 아름답지요?
The autumn leaves are beautiful, aren't they?
- 나 네, 정말 아름답네요.
Yes, they really are.
- 가 오늘 날씨가 좋지요?
The weather's nice today, isn't it?
- 나 네, 좋아요.
Yes, it is.
- 가 편의점에서 약을 샀어요?
Did you buy the medicine at a convenience store?
- 나 네. 약국은 밤에 문을 닫는데 편의점은 안 닫아요.
Yes. The pharmacy shuts at night, but the convenience store doesn't.

The three practice exchanges are the whole chapter compressed: -지요? asked twice and answered with agreement, then -는데 setting two shops against each other. If you can say these three fluently you have the chapter.

That is the end of the book. Eighteen chapters ago you were learning to say your name; you can now explain why you went to the doctor, arrange to meet someone, read a prohibition sign, and say what you make of living here. 수고하셨습니다 — well done.
