

11과 어버이날에 부모님께 꽃을 드려요

Chapter 11 — On Parents' Day I give my parents flowers

This chapter at a glance

주제	Topic 특별한 날 — special days
어휘와 문법	Vocabulary & grammar 특별한 날 관련 어휘 / 명에게/한테/께 / 동-어 주다 — words for special days · marking who receives · doing something for someone
활동	Activities 특별한 날 소개하기, 특별한 날의 경험 쓰기 — introducing a special day; writing about one you have had
문화와 정보	Culture & information 한국의 국경일 — Korea's national days

Both grammar points in this chapter are about other people. 에게/한테/께 marks who receives something, and -어 주다 marks that you did something for someone rather than for yourself. Korean makes both explicit where English often leaves them to be inferred.

The title uses the honorific versions of both: 께 rather than 에게, and 드리다 rather than 주다, because the recipients are your parents. Chapter 10 taught you to raise people you talk about; this chapter teaches you to raise people you give things to.

도입

Warm-up

이 사람들은 지금 뭐 해요?

What are these people doing?

여러분은 언제 선물을 해요?

When do you give presents?

The page shows three occasions: two sons pinning red carnations on their mother while wrapped presents sit on the floor; a family clapping round a cake for a grandfather in a party hat; and a graduate in cap and gown holding a bouquet between his parents. Carnations, cake and flowers — the three things this chapter is about giving.

선물을 해요, not 선물해요 alone — Korean treats giving a present as 선물을 하다, with the object marker. You will also see 선물을 주다 and, to someone older, 선물을 드리다. All three appear in this chapter.

The red carnation is specifically the Parents' Day flower in Korea. Children pin one to a parent's chest on 8 May, and schools have children make paper ones. If you see them appearing in shops in early May, that is why.

어휘와 문법 1

Vocabulary & grammar 1

가족이나 친구를 축하하고 싶어요. 뭐 해요?

You want to congratulate a family member or friend. What do you do?

주다 · 보내다 · 받다 — the three basic verbs

주다

to give — handing something over in person

보내다

to send — by post or courier

받다 to receive

Paired: doing it, and having it done to you

초대를 하다

to invite 초대를 받다

to be invited

선물을 하다

to give a present

선물을 받다

to receive a present

이야기를 하다

to talk, to tell

이야기를 듣다

to listen, to be told

전화를 하다

to make a phone call

전화를 받다

to answer a phone call

This page is built on one pattern: 하다 for the person doing it, 받다 for the person it happens to. Korean has no passive voice here — it simply swaps the verb. 초대를 했어요 means I invited; 초대를 받았어요 means I was invited.

이야기를 듣다 is the odd one out, taking 듣다 rather than 받다. It follows the sense of the verb: you hear a story, you do not receive one. And 듣다 is the ㄷ-irregular you now know well — 들었어요, 들으세요.

주다 and 보내다 differ only in whether you are there. Hand your friend a present and it is 줬어요; post it and it is 보냈어요. English "give" covers both, so this is a distinction to make deliberately at first.

친구 생일이예요. 여러분은 뭐 해요? 이야기해 보세요.

It's a friend's birthday. What do you do? Talk about it.

가 친구 생일에 뭐 해요?

What do you do for a friend's birthday?

나 선물을 줘요.

I give a present.

줘요 is 주다 in the polite present, contracted from 주어요. You will see both written; 줘요 is what people say. Its past is 줬어요, from 주었어요 — the same contraction as 봤어요 in chapter 9.

명에게/한테/께

Noun + 에게 / 한테 / 께 — marking who receives

행위의 영향을 받는 대상임을 나타낼 때 사용해요.

Used to mark the person affected by the action.

가 안젤라 씨, 누구에게 전화를 했어요?
Angela, who did you call?

나 동생에게 전화를 했어요.
I called my younger sister.

예문 — Examples

가 아버지께 생신 선물 보냈어요?
Did you send your father a birthday present?

나 네, 옷을 보냈어요.
Yes, I sent clothes.

고향 친구한테 이메일을 썼어요.

I wrote an email to a friend back home.

에게 / 한테 — for ordinary people

동생 → 동생에게 / 동생한테
to my younger sibling

친구 → 친구에게 / 친구한테
to my friend

께 — for people you respect

선생님 → 선생님께 to my teacher

할머니 → 할머니께
to my grandmother

에게 and 한테 mean exactly the same thing. The difference is register: 에게 belongs to writing and careful speech, 한테 to everyday conversation. Neither has a 받침 rule — the same form goes on any noun.

께 is the honorific of both, and it is the same 께 you met inside 께서 in chapter 10. Use it for parents, teachers, grandparents, bosses. Sending your teacher an email is 선생님께, never 선생님에게.

These three are only for people and animals. For a place or a thing you go back to 예: 학교에 편지를 보냈어요 — I sent a letter to the school as an institution; 선생님께 보냈어요 — I sent it to the teacher. Choosing 에게 for a building is a common early mistake.

When 께 is the recipient, the verb usually rises too. 선생님께 선물을 드렸어요 uses 드리다, the honorific of 주다, rather than 줬어요. The particle and the verb move together, and the exercise below relies on it.

연습 1 — 이 사람은 누구에게 뭐 해요? 이야기해 보세요.

가 슬기가 누구에게 초대장을 줘요?
Who is Seulgi giving the invitation to?

나 친구에게 초대장을 줘요.
She's giving the invitation to a friend.

보기) 슬기 / 친구 — 초대장을 주다

Seulgi / friend — give an invitation → 친구에게 줘요

1) 이링 / 동생 — 이메일을 보내다

Yiling / younger sibling — send an email → 동생에게 보내요

2) 라흐만 / 사장님 — 전화를 하다

Rahman / the boss — make a call → 사장님께 전화해요

3) 성민 / 어머니 — 선물을 드리다

Seongmin / mother — give a present → 어머니께 드려요

Items 2 and 3 are the honorific ones: 사장님 and 어머니 both take 께. Notice that 3 already gives you 드리다 rather than 주다 in the prompt — the book is checking that you spot why.

연습 2 — 여러분은 누구에게 자주 전화해요? 이야기해 보세요.

어휘와 문법 2

Vocabulary & grammar 2

무슨 날이에요? 뭐라고 말해요?

What day is it? What do you say?

특별한 날 — Special days, and what you say on them

어버이날	Parents' Day, 8 May 부모님, 감사합니다. — Thank you, Mother and Father.
스승의 날	Teachers' Day, 15 May 선생님, 감사합니다. — Thank you, teacher.
졸업식	a graduation ceremony 졸업을 축하해요. — Congratulations on your graduation.
결혼식	a wedding 결혼을 축하드립니다. — Congratulations on your marriage.
생일 / 생신	a birthday / a birthday, honorific 생일을 축하해요. · 생신을 축하드립니다.

Look at the two congratulation forms side by side. 축하해요 is for a friend or someone younger; 축하드립니다 is for someone you respect, built on 드리다 again. The page pairs them deliberately: 생일을 축하해요 to a classmate, 생신을 축하드립니다 to a grandfather.

어버이 is an old word for parents, kept alive almost only in 어버이날. Korea has one day for both parents rather than separate ones, and it falls on 8 May, in the middle of what Koreans call 가정의 달 — family month.

스승 means a teacher in the deeper sense of a mentor, and 스승의 날 is 15 May, chosen because it is King Sejong's birthday. Pupils traditionally give carnations, though many schools now discourage gifts to avoid any suggestion of favours.

식 at the end of 졸업식 and 결혼식 means "ceremony". You will see it everywhere: 입학식 the entrance ceremony, 개회식 the opening ceremony. Spot the 식 and you know an event is being named.

특별한 날이에요. 뭐라고 말해요?

It's a special day. What do you say?

- 가 어버이날이에요. 부모님께 뭐라고 말해요?
It's Parents' Day. What do you say to your parents?
- 나 부모님, 감사합니다.
Thank you, Mother and Father.

뭐라고 말해요? — "what do you say?" — uses 라고, the marker for quoted speech. You are not expected to build sentences with it yet, but the question form is worth recognising: it is asking for the exact words.

동-어 주다

Verb + -어 주다 — doing something for someone

다른 사람을 위해서 어떤 행동을 할 때 사용해요.

Used when you do something for the benefit of another person.

딸에게 책을 읽어 줘요.

He reads a book to his daughter.

예문 — Examples

가 잠시드 씨, 창문을 좀 닫아 주세요.
Jamshid, could you close the window, please?

나 네, 알겠습니다.
Yes, of course.

오늘은 친구 생일이예요. 그래서 축하해 주었어요.
Today is my friend's birthday, so I congratulated him.

-아 주다 — after stem vowels ㅏ and ㅑ

닫다 → 닫아 주다 to close it for someone	사다 → 사 주다 to buy it for someone
--	---

-어 주다 — after every other vowel

만들다 → 만들어 주다 to make it for someone	쓰다 → 써 주다 to write it for someone
---	---

-해 주다 — for 하다 verbs

축하하다 → 축하해 주다
to congratulate someone

The vowel rule is exactly the one you learned for the past tense in chapter 9: ㅏ or ㅑ takes 아, everything else takes 어, and 하다 gives 해. If you can form 만들었어요 you can form 만들어 주다 — same choice, different ending.

사다 → 사 주다 shows the same contraction as 샀어요: 사 + 아 collapses into one 사. Likewise 쓰다 → 써 주다, where the — drops out. The contractions are not new; only the 주다 after them is.

This is what 주세요 has secretly been all along. 닫아 주세요 is 닫아 주다 in the request form from chapter 7 — "do the closing for me". Every polite request you have made this whole book has been this construction.

The honorific counterpart is -어 드리다, for doing something for someone you respect: 어머니께 케이크를 만들어 드렸어요. The exercise below asks for exactly that, so watch for whose birthday it is.

Without 주다 the sentence is merely factual. 케이크를 만들었어요 says a cake got made; 케이크를 만들어 줬어요 says you made it for someone. Korean marks the kindness, and leaving it out can sound oddly cold.

연습 1 — 후엔 씨의 생일이예요. 다음 사람들은 후엔 씨에게 뭘 해 줘요?

가 민수 씨는 뭘 해 줘요?
What is Minsu doing for her?

나 생일 선물을 사 줘요.
He's buying her a birthday present.

보기) 박민수 — 생일 선물을 사다

Park Minsu — buy a birthday present → 사 줘요

2) 고천 — 카드를 쓰다

Gocheon — write a card → 써 줘요

1) 이링 — 케이크를 만들다

Yiling — make a cake → 만들어 줘요

3) 안젤라 — 생일 축하 노래를 부르다

Angela — sing Happy Birthday → 불러 줘요

부르다 → 불러 주다 is a new irregularity: 르 verbs double the ㄹ and take 어. The same pattern gives 모르다 → 몰라요 and 빠르다 → 빨라요. It is worth noting now, because 르 verbs are common.

연습 2 — 여러분은 부모님 생신에 뭘 해 드려요? 이야기해 보세요.

Notice the question says 해 드려요, not 해 줘요, because the parents are the recipients. Answer the same way:
케이크를 만들어 드려요, 꽃을 사 드려요.

말하기와 듣기

Speaking & listening

고천 씨와 후엔 씨가 이야기해요. 다음과 같이 이야기해 보세요.

Gocheon and Huyen are talking. Practise the conversation below.

고천 후엔 씨, 주말 잘 보냈어요? 후엔 씨는 지난주에 뭐 했어요?

Huyen, did you have a good weekend? What did you do last week?

후엔 슬기 생일이었어요. 그래서 슬기에게 책을 사 주었어요. 고천 씨는요?

It was Seulgi's birthday, so I bought her a book. How about you?

고천 지난 주말이 중국의 어머니날이었어요. 그래서 어머니께 선물을 보내 드렸어요.

Last weekend was Mother's Day in China, so I sent my mother a present.

Swap in these sets

1) 슬기 생일 | 슬기, 책을 사다 | 중국의 어머니날 | 어머니, 선물을 보내다

Seulgi's birthday | Seulgi, buy a book | Mother's Day in China | mother, send a present

2) 친구 결혼식 | 친구, 축하 노래를 부르다 | 아버지 생신 | 아버지, 케이크를 만들다

a friend's wedding | friend, sing a song | father's birthday | father, make a cake

The two halves of this dialogue are the whole chapter in miniature. 슬기에게 책을 사 주었어요 is the plain pair; 어머니께 선물을 보내 드렸어요 is the honorific pair. Same sentence shape, raised throughout because the recipient changed.

주말 잘 보냈어요? — "did you spend the weekend well?" — is a standard Monday greeting. 보내다 here means to spend time, not to send an object. The same verb, two quite different jobs.

이었어요 is the past of 이다 after a consonant: 생일이었어요, it was a birthday. After a vowel it contracts to 였어요 — 어머니날이었어요 keeps the full form because 날 ends in ㄴ.

연습 2 — 여러분 나라의 특별한 날은 언제예요? 그날 뭐 해요?

가 베트남은 여성의 날에 여자에게 꽃을 선물해 줘요.

In Vietnam, on Women's Day people give women flowers.

나 한국은 어린이날에 아이에게 선물을 사 줘요.

In Korea, on Children's Day people buy children presents.

듣기 — 안젤라 씨와 드미트리 씨가 이야기해요. 잘 듣고 답해 보세요.

1) 오늘은 무슨 날이에요?

What day is it today?

2) 드미트리 씨에게 누가, 무엇을 줬어요?

Who gave Dmitri what?

Question 2 asks for two things at once — who and what — and the 에게 tells you Dmitri is the receiver, not the giver. Listen for the giver's name first; the 이/가 will be on it.

단어장 — New words

여성의 날

International Women's Day, 8 March

어린이날

Children's Day, 5 May

어린이날 is a public holiday in Korea and a genuinely big day: parks and zoos are packed, and children are given presents. It falls on 5 May, three days before 어버이날, which is why May is called 가정의 달.

읽기와 쓰기

Reading & writing

다음 글을 읽고 질문에 답해 보세요.

Read the passage and answer the questions.

어제는 제 졸업식이었습니다.

Yesterday was my graduation.

친구들이 축하해 주었습니다.

My friends congratulated me.

어머니는 저에게 꽃하고 시계를 선물해 주셨습니다.

My mother gave me flowers and a watch.

그리고 동생은 사진을 찍어 주었습니다.

And my younger brother took photos for me.

졸업식 후에 우리 가족은 한국 식당에 갔습니다.

After the ceremony my family went to a Korean restaurant.

아버지께서 불고기를 사 주셨습니다.

My father bought us bulgogi.

불고기가 정말 맛있었습니다.

The bulgogi was really delicious.

저는 기분이 아주 좋았습니다.

I felt very happy.

Every act of kindness in this passage carries 주다: 축하해 주었습니다, 선물해 주셨습니다, 찍어 주었습니다, 사 주셨습니다. Strip them out and you would have a list of events; with them, you have a description of people being good to the writer.

Two of the four are 주셨습니다 rather than 주었습니다 — the ones where the giver is a parent. 어머니는 선물해 주셨습니다 and 아버지께서 사 주셨습니다 both raise the giver, while the friends and younger brother do not. The honorifics track who outranks whom, exactly as in chapter 10.

아버지께서 uses the honorific subject marker from chapter 10. Note the contrast within one passage: 어머니는 with the plain topic marker, 아버지께서 with the raised one. Both are acceptable; the second is more formal.

후에 means "after" and follows the noun: 졸업식 후에, after the graduation. Its opposite is 전에, before. Both attach to a noun, so "after the meal" is 식사 후에.

Questions

1) 어제는 무슨 날이었어요?

What day was yesterday? → 졸업식이었어요

① 꽃하고 시계

flowers and a watch → 어머니

③ 불고기 bulgogi → 아버지

2) 누가 무엇을 해 주었어요? 알맞은 것을 연결하세요.

Who did what? Match them up.

② 사진

photographs → 동생

3) 이 사람은 어제 기분이 어땠어요?

How did this person feel yesterday? → 기분이 아주 좋았어요

기분이 좋다 is "to feel good", with 기분 — mood — as the subject. Korean puts the feeling in the subject slot and leaves the person as topic: 저는 기분이 좋았습니다. The same shape as 다리가 아팠습니다 in chapter 9.

여러분은 특별한 날(생일, 졸업식, 어버이날 등)을 어떻게 보냈어요? 글로 써 보세요.

Use the passage as your model: what day it was, who did what for you — each with 주다 — where you went, and how you felt at the end. Remember 주셨습니다 for anyone older than you.

단어장 — New words

기분이 좋다

to feel good, to be in a good mood

문화와 정보 — 한국의 국경일

Culture & information — Korea's national days

한국에는 모두 5일의 국경일이 있습니다.

Korea has five national days in all.

3월 1일은 3·1절입니다. 한국 사람들은 1919년 3월 1일에 독립운동을 했습니다.

1 March is Samil-jeol. On 1 March 1919 Koreans staged an independence movement.

7월 17일은 제헌절입니다. 1948년 7월 17일에 헌법을 공포했습니다.

17 July is Constitution Day. The constitution was promulgated on 17 July 1948.

8월 15일은 광복절입니다. 한국은 1945년 8월 15일에 나라를 다시 찾았습니다.

15 August is Liberation Day. On 15 August 1945 Korea regained its country.

10월 3일은 개천절입니다. 기원전(B.C.) 2333년에 한국 최초의 국가, 고조선을 세웠습니다.

3 October is National Foundation Day. In 2333 BC the first Korean state, Gojoseon, was founded.

10월 9일은 한글날입니다. 한글은 세종대왕이 만들었습니다.

9 October is Hangeul Day. Hangeul was created by King Sejong.

국경일 means a national day, and it is not the same as 공휴일, a public holiday. Four of these five are days off; 제헌절 lost its holiday status in 2008 and is now marked without closing anything. So "five national days" does not mean five days off work.

절 at the end of 3·1절, 제헌절, 광복절 and 개천절 means a commemorative day. 한글날 uses the plain Korean 날 instead, and 3·1절 is read 삼일절 — say the numbers, not the dot.

광복 literally means "restored light", which is why 광복절 is the day the country was recovered rather than simply the end of the war. The same date is a holiday in several countries for different reasons; here it is specifically about the end of Japanese rule.

Hangeul Day celebrates the alphabet you are reading right now, published in 1446. Korea may be the only country with a national holiday for its writing system, and after eleven chapters of 받침 rules you may feel it has earned one.

Questions

1) 광복절은 언제예요?

When is Liberation Day? → 8월 15일이에요

2) 10월 9일은 무슨 날이에요?

What day is 9 October? → 한글날이에요

3) 여러분 나라의 국경일은 언제예요?

When are the national days in your country?

Dates take Sino-Korean numbers, as in chapter 5: 8월 15일 is 팔월 십오일, and 10월 9일 is 시월 구일. Note that October is 시월, not 십월 — the ㅊ drops for ease of pronunciation, as it does in 유월 for June.

발음 1 — 다음을 듣고 따라 읽으세요.

만들어요	[만드러요] man-deu-reo-yo
축하해요	[추카해요] chu-ka-hae-yo
어버이날이에요	[어버이나리예요] eo-beo-i-na-ri-e-yo

만들어요 and 어버이날이에요 are ordinary linking: the ㄹ slides onto the following vowel, giving [만드러] and [나리]. You have been doing this since chapter 5 — it is the most common sound change in the language.

축하해요 → [추카해요] is the ㅎ merger from chapter 10, the same rule that gave 어떻게 → [어떠케]. Here the ㄱ of 축 meets the ㅎ of 하 and the two fuse into an aspirated ㅋ. Nobody says [축하해요] with both consonants separate.

발음 2 — 다음을 듣고 연습해 보세요.

가	아내 생일에 뭐 해 줘요? What do you do for your wife's birthday?
나	케이크를 만들어 줘요. I make her a cake.
가	생일을 축하해요. Happy birthday.
나	네, 고마워요. Thank you.
가	다음 주 수요일이 어버이날이에요. Next Wednesday is Parents' Day.

고마워요 and 감사합니다 both mean thank you. 고마워요 is warmer and more casual, 감사합니다 more formal — which is why the page uses 감사합니다 for parents and teachers but 고마워요 between friends.
