Chapter 8 — Food and cooking

This chapter at a glance

어휘	Vocabulary 양념과 맛, 요리 방법 — seasonings, tastes and ways of cooking
문법	Grammar 사동① / 사동② — making someone do something · making something happen
활동	Activities 요리 방법 이야기하기, 고향 음식 요리 방법 소개하기 — talking a recipe through; introducing a dish from home
문화와 정보	Culture & information 식품의 유통 기한 — the date on the packet

The whole chapter is one grammar point in two halves: 사동, the causative. It is the mirror of the 피동 you met in chapter 6, and it uses the same infixes plus two more — 이, 히, 리, 기, 우, 추. Where the passive says something happened to you, the causative says you made it happen to something else.

사동① and 사동② are not two different rules. The split is about what you are acting on: ① is making a person or an animal do something, ② is making an object or a situation change. The forms are built identically, so learn them as one set.

이 사람들은 지금 무엇을 하고 있어요?

What are these people doing?

여러분이 자주 만들어 먹거나 좋아하는 음식은 뭐예요?

What do you often cook for yourself, or particularly like?

양념 is the chapter's first word and covers more than 'seasoning' does. It takes in the pastes and sauces — 고추장, 된장, 간장 — as well as salt, pepper and sesame. A Korean cook thinks of 양념 as a single category of things that go into a dish to give it its taste, and dishes are often named by it: 양념 치킨, 양념 갈비.

어휘

Vocabulary

무슨 양념이에요? 맛이 어때요?

Which seasoning is it? What does it taste like?

양념 — seasonings

고추장

red chilli paste, hot and slightly sweet

된장

fermented soybean paste, deep and salty

식초

vinegar, sour

깨

sesame seeds

간장

soy sauce, salty

참기름

sesame oil, nutty and aromatic

고춧가루

chilli powder

후추

black pepper

고추장, 된장 and 간장 all end in 장, which marks them as the fermented base seasonings of the Korean kitchen. They are not interchangeable and each one defines a family of dishes. Learning which 장 a dish takes tells you most of what it will taste like.

참기름 is a finishing oil, not a frying one. It goes in at the end, off the heat, for its smell. The oil you actually fry in is 식용유, which you will meet on page 104. Putting 참기름 in a hot pan wastes it, and Korean recipes are careful about the order.

무슨 요리를 해요? 요리 준비를 어떻게 해요?

What are you cooking? How do you prepare it?

요리 방법 — preparing and cooking

당근을 씻다

to wash a carrot

양파 껍질을 벗기다

to peel an onion

감자를 칼로 썰다

to cut a potato with a knife

마늘을 다지다

to mince garlic

물을 끓이다

to boil water

기름에 튀기다

to deep-fry in oil

만두를 찌다

to steam dumplings

계란을 삶다

to hard-boil an egg

밥을 볶다

to fry rice, stirring

나물을 무치다

to dress vegetables by hand

고기를 굽다

to grill or roast meat

시금치를 데치다

to blanch spinach briefly

Korean distinguishes four things English lumps under 'boil'. 끓이다 is to bring liquid to the boil and cook in it; 삶다 is to boil something solid in water, like an egg; 찌다 is to steam over water; 데치다 is to dip in boiling water for seconds and lift straight out. Choosing the wrong one describes a different dish.

무치다 has no English equivalent because the technique is specific: cooked or raw vegetables mixed by hand with seasoning until dressed. It is how 나물 side dishes are made. Note that it is done with the hands, which is part of the word's meaning.

Watch 볶다 against 튀기다. 볶다 is a small amount of oil and constant movement — stir-frying. 튀기다 is submerging in hot oil — deep-frying. 볶음밥, fried rice, comes from the first.

문법 1: 사동①

Grammar 1 — The causative, on people and animals

다른 사람이나 동물에게 어떤 행동을 하게 함을 나타낸다.

Shows making another person or an animal do something.

이링 우리 아이는 채소를 잘 안 먹어서 걱정이예요.

My child won't eat vegetables and it worries me.

안젤라 그래서 저는 채소로 볶음밥을 만들어서 아이한테 먹여요.

That's why I make fried rice with vegetables and feed it to mine.

예문 — examples

가 아기랑 같이 산책하러 갈까요?

Shall we take the baby for a walk?

나 네. 날씨가 좀 추우니까 옷을 따뜻하게 입히세요.

Yes. It's a bit cold, so dress them warmly.

겨울 코트 세탁은 세탁소에 맡기세요.

Leave winter coats to the dry cleaner's to wash.

저는 아이를 자동차 뒷자리에 태워요.

I put my child in the back seat of the car.

The six infixes

-이-	먹다 → 먹이다 to eat → to feed
-히-	입다 → 입히다 to wear → to dress someone
-리-	살다 → 살리다 to live → to save a life
-기-	신다 → 신기다 to put shoes on → to put shoes on someone
-우-	타다 → 태우다 to ride → to give someone a ride
-추-	맞다 → 맞추다 to fit → to make something fit

These are the same infixes as the passive in chapter 6, and some words take both readings. Which one is meant comes from the sentence, not the word: 아이가 옷을 입어요 is the child dressing, 엄마가 아이한테 옷을 입혀요 is the mother dressing the child. Look for who is acting on whom.

The causative adds a person to the sentence, and that new person takes 한테 or 에게. Compare 아이가 밥을 먹어요 with 엄마가 아이한테 밥을 먹여요 — the child moves from subject to recipient, and the mother takes over as subject. Getting that particle right matters more than the verb form.

Like the passive, these are learned as pairs, not derived by rule. There is no way to predict that 타다 takes -우- while 신다 takes -기-. Treat the six rows above as six vocabulary items.

연습 1 — 보기: look at each picture and ask a partner질문 성민이 지금 뭐 해요?

대답 성민은 토끼한테 당근을 먹이고 있어요.

Seongmin — the rabbit — a carrot — to feed

1) 민수 · 아이 · 모자 · 씌우다

Minsu — the child — a hat — to put on someone

2) 유진 · 엄마 · 종이비행기 · 날리다

Yujin — mother — a paper plane — to fly something

3) 선생님 · 학생 · 한국어책 · 읽히다

the teacher — the students — a Korean book — to have someone read 아이와 함께 공원에 나가려고 해요. 어떻게 준비할까요?

You're taking a child out to the park. How do you get them ready?

옷, 신발, 모자, 유모차?

Clothes, shoes, a hat, the pushchair?

아이한테 따뜻한 옷을 입혀요. 그리고 신발을 신겨요.

Dress the child warmly. Then put their shoes on.

a rabbit

유모차

a pushchair, a pram

문법 2: 사동②

Grammar 2 — The causative, on things and states

사람이나 사물이 어떤 작용이나 행동을 하게 함을 나타낸다.

Shows making a person or a thing undergo some action or change.

라민 지금 차를 마시려고 하는데 같이 마실래요??
I'm about to make tea — would you like some?

아나이스 그럼 제가 물을 끓일게요.
Then I'll boil the water.

예문 — examples

가 남은 고기는 어떻게 할까요?
What shall we do with the leftover meat?

나 냉동실에 넣어서 얼리세요.
Put it in the freezer and freeze it.

음악 소리가 너무 크니까 소리를 좀 줄여 주시겠어요?
The music is too loud — could you turn it down a little?

음식이 맛있어서 남기지 않고 다 먹었어요.
The food was good, so I left nothing and ate it all.

The five infixes here

-이-	끓다 → 끓이다 to come to the boil → to boil something
-히-	넓다 → 넓히다 to be wide → to widen something
-기-	남다 → 남기다 to be left over → to leave something over
-우-	깨다 → 깨우다 to wake → to wake someone
-추-	낮다 → 낮추다 to be low → to lower something

Two of these start from adjectives, not verbs: 넓다 and 낮다 describe a state, and the causative turns the state into an action done to something. 넓히다 is to make wide, 낮추다 is to make low. This is a productive pattern worth noticing.

끓다 and 끓이다 is the pair to fix in your mind, because you will use it constantly. 물이 끓어요 is the water boiling by itself; 물을 끓여요 is you boiling it. The particle tells you which: 이/가 for the first, 을/를 for the second.

줄이다 and 늘리다 — turn down and turn up, reduce and increase — are the everyday causatives you will hear most. 소리를 줄이다 for volume, 시간을 줄이다 for time, 양을 늘리다 for quantity.

연습 1 — 보기: look at each picture and ask a partner

대답 제이슨 씨가 양파 껍질을 벗겨요.

Jason — onion skin — to peel

2) 라민 · 물 · 끓이다

2) 양배추주스 · 양배추, 브로콜리, 당근을 씻어 삶은 다음 믹서기에 넣고 갈다 cabbage juice — wash and boil cabbage, broccoli and carrot, then blend

2) 없어질 때까지 갈다
blend until no pieces are left

익다 means cooked through — done — and applies to food on the heat and to fruit ripening on the tree. 큰 채소가 익을 때까지 is the natural way a Korean cook gives a time: not in minutes, but by the state of the food.

-을 때까지 is 'until', and it is how this whole recipe is timed: 익을 때까지, 없어질 때까지. Attach it to the verb stem and you can give any instruction a finishing condition without naming a number.

여러분이 자주 가는 식당은 어디입니까? 그 식당에는 어떤 음식이 있습니까?

Which restaurants do you go to often? What do they serve?

Four kinds of eating place

뷔페

a buffet: salad, fried prawns, dumplings

중국집

a Korean-Chinese place: 짜장면, 짬뽕, stir-fries

한정식집

a set-menu Korean restaurant: many small dishes at once

분식집

a cheap snack shop: 떡볶이, 라면, 김밥

분식 literally means 'flour food' and names a whole class of cheap, fast Korean dishes. A 분식집 is where students eat. It is the most useful of these four to be able to recognise, and the cheapest way to eat out in Korea.

후엔 씨와 제이슨 씨가 이야기합니다. 잘 듣고 질문에 답해 보세요.

Huyen and Jason are talking. Listen and answer.

1) 제이슨 씨가 어제 간 식당은 어디입니까?

③ 이 식당은 고기만 있어서 다른 음식을 먹을 수 없다.

This restaurant serves only meat, nothing else.

발음 — 연음: the consonant moves across

받침 + 모음으로 시작하는 글자 → 받침이 뒤 글자의 첫소리가 된다

A final consonant slides over to start the next syllable when that syllable begins with a vowel.

볶아요

[보까요]

the ㄱ of 볶 moves across to start 아

볶음밥을

[보곰바블]

ㄱ moves to 음, and ㅂ moves to 을

껍질은

[껍찌른]

ㅈ moves to 일, and ㄹ starts 은

This is why spoken Korean can sound nothing like the page. Nothing is being dropped — the consonants are simply resyllabified across the boundary. Once you expect it, words you already know become recognisable in speech.

It matters most with particles, because they nearly all begin with a vowel: 을, 이, 은, 에. Every time you add one, the consonant before it moves. 밥을 is [바블], not [밥을].

맞추다 — to get something right

절이다 is itself a causative — from 절다, to become steeped. It is the first step of making kimchi: the cabbage is salted down for hours before anything else happens. 맞추다, in the last row, is the same 맞추다 you met on page 99.

간 means the salt level of a dish, and 간을 맞추다 is what a cook does at the end, tasting and adjusting. There is no single English verb for it. If a dish is under-seasoned Koreans say 간이 안 맞아요 — the salt isn't right.

다음은 김치로 만들 수 있는 요리입니다. 요리 이름과 요리 방법을 이야기해 보세요.

Here are two dishes you can make with kimchi. Talk about their names and methods.

첫 번째 요리 — 재료

김치, 양파, 참기름, 설탕, 부침 가루

kimchi, onion, sesame oil, sugar, pancake flour

방법

❶ 김치와 양파는 얇게 썰어 준비하세요.

Slice the kimchi and onion thinly.

❷ 준비된 재료의 양에 맞춰 부침 가루 2컵에 물 1컵을 넣어 잘 섞어 주세요.

Mix 2 cups of pancake flour with 1 cup of water to suit the amount.

❸ 프라이팬에 부치고 접시에 예쁘게 담으세요.

Fry it in the pan and plate it up nicely.

두 번째 요리 — 재료

고추장, 사과 식초, 다진 마늘, 참기름, 고춧가루, 비빔국수면 chilli paste, apple vinegar, minced garlic, sesame oil, chilli powder, noodles

방법

❶ 국수를 4분 정도 삶고 물을 빼세요.

Boil the noodles about 4 minutes and drain.

❷ 국수에 상추, 깻잎을 채 썰어 넣고 양념 재료를 넣고 비비세요.

Shred lettuce and perilla into the noodles, add the seasonings and mix.

❸ 완성되면 그릇에 담고 삶은 계란을 잘라 위에 놓으세요.

When done, put it in a bowl and lay sliced boiled egg on top.

이것은 무엇일까요?

What are these two dishes?

The first is 김치전, a kimchi pancake; the second is 비빔국수, cold mixed noodles. Neither name is printed — working them out from the ingredients is the exercise. 부침 가루 in the first recipe is a giveaway: it is flour sold specifically for making 전.

④ 라흐만: 재료를 볶은 후에 밥을 넣고 볶는다.

Rahman: fry the ingredients, then add the rice and fry.

The title is an idiom, and it is the answer to question 2. 둘이 먹다가 하나가 죽어도 모른다 — 'two are eating and one could die without the other noticing' — means the food is so good you lose track of everything else. It is used only about food, and always about something homely.

식용유를 두르다 is the standard phrase for oiling a pan. 두르다 is to run something round the edge, which is exactly the motion. You would not say 식용유를 넣다 here.

Question 3 rewards careful reading rather than cooking knowledge. Step ② says pieces should be 먹기 좋은 크기 — bite-sized, not matchsticks; the note under 재료 says you may use only what you have; and the pan is a 프라이팬. Only ④ matches the text.

문화와 정보: 식품의 유통 기한

Culture & information — The date on the packet

'유통 기한'은 판매자가 식품 등의 제품을 소비자에게 팔 수 있는 날짜를 말한다.

'유통 기한' is the date up to which a seller may sell a food product to a customer.

이 날짜가 지나면 상하지 않은 제품도 더 이상 판매할 수 없다.

Once it passes, a product cannot be sold even if it has not gone off.

이러한 유통 기한은 년, 월, 일로 표시하는데 식품에 따라서는 시간까지 표시를 하기도 한다.

It is given as year, month and day, and on some foods the hour as well.

그런데 최근에는 제품에 '유통 기한'과 함께 '소비 기한'을 표시하기도 한다.

Recently, though, products may carry a '소비 기한' alongside it.

'소비 기한'은 유통 기한이 지나도 일정 기간 이후까지 우리가 음식을 먹을 수 있는 날짜를 말한다.

'소비 기한' is the date up to which the food is still safe to eat.

소비 기한은 제품에 따라서 18개월 이상도 가능하기 때문에 보관 방법을 잘 지킨다면 유통 기한이 지난 음식을 아깝게 버리는 일을 줄일 수 있다.

It can run 18 months or more, so storing food properly means less of it is thrown away.

다만 올바른 방법으로 보관하지 않으면 유통 기한 이내에도 식품은 변할 수 있다는 사실을 꼭 기억해야 한다.

But remember that badly stored food can spoil even before the sell-by date.

질문 — questions

1) '유통 기한'은 무엇을 말합니까?

What does 유통 기한 mean?

2) 식품 보관 방법을 잘 지켜야 하는 이유는 무엇입니까?

Why must food be stored properly?

3) 여러분 고향에서는 식품의 유통 기한이 어떻게 표시됩니까?

How is the date shown on food where you come from?

The distinction is worth getting right because it affects what you throw away. 유통 기한 is a limit on the shop, not on you — it is a sell-by date. 소비 기한 is the use-by date, the one that tells you whether the food is still good, and it is usually much later.

Korea has been moving from 유통 기한 to 소비 기한 on packaging, precisely to reduce waste. You will see both on shelves. If a packet shows only 유통 기한 and the date has just passed, the food is very often still fine — provided it was stored as the label says.

The photograph shows a shopper comparing two bottles: 유통 기한 06.02. with 제조 일자 05.22., against 06.04. and 05.25. 제조 일자 is the date of manufacture, a third date worth recognising.

The causative pairs are the thing to carry out of this chapter. 끓다/끓이다, 깨다/깨우다, 남다/남기다, 익다/익히다 — in each case the second is you doing it to something. They are also the verbs a recipe is written in.

Notice how many cutting words Korean has where English has one. 썰다 is the general verb, but 채를 썰다, 얇게 썰다 and 깍둑썰다 name three specific shapes, and a recipe will assume you know which is meant.
